To meet the creative studio arts requirement, students complete a minimum of one semester hour of academic credit in any of these courses. Students must be registered for credit. Students must earn a passing letter grade in order for the course to be counted toward the requirement unless the course permits only S/U grading.

Students must demonstrate competency, show prerequisite course work or audition in order to enroll in some courses and enrollment in all courses is on a space available basis.

Advanced courses that require one or more courses as prerequisites and courses restricted to students in particular majors are not included in the list of creative studio arts courses. Students who receive permission to enroll in an advanced course in the creative arts may petition the Academic Concerns Committee for permission to count the course toward the requirement.
