

This was a most precious meeting and many were the shouts of praise that went up to heaven from night to night, truly it was the old kind religion and the people were not slow to tell it, and even members of other churches ventured to acknowledge it. It was good to be here. The meeting held at Olivet in November and December lasted four weeks, in which there were 6 conversions and accessions to the church. In all we have received into the church-fellowship since conference 30 members for which we thank God, take courage and go on. Pray for us on Germantown Mission."

Rev. U. Miller says: "I closed my meeting at Stringtown, February 14. It was an old time revival. The people old and young wept and praised God together. Sinners wept and came to Christ, 15 was converted and 18 united with the church. This was my third meeting this winter and the good Lord has been with me all the time. Bless his Holy name. I expect to live with him forever, now I must go to Spring Valley next, will you pray for us and the work?"

SANDUSKY.

Rev. S. H. Baldwin says: "We have just closed a meeting at Homes Chapple, Bucyrus Circuit, Rev. J. C. Gowdy in charge. There were two reclaimed, one converted and the church greatly revived. One joined the church. We hold next at Brandywine. Pray for us."

KANSAS.

Rev. F. D. Heckard says: "We closed our revival at Abilene, Kansas, and had a good meeting, seven saved and the church in general revived. To God be all the glory."

SCIOTO.

Rev. A. Garrabot conducted a meeting of three weeks duration at Pike Run Class. Seventeen bowed at the altar with 10 conversions and 8 accessions, with more to follow. Cold weather and sickness hindered much. Brother Riser and the writer assisted the last week of the meeting. The Lord will not disappoint the diligent.

Book Review.

THINGS OF NORTHFIELD AND OTHER THINGS, THAT SHOULD BE IN EVERY CHURCH. By Rev. David Gregg, D. D. This book consists of five discourses preached in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn on the work of Moody and his coadjutors at Northfield. This is a readable book, describing both the work and the spirit of piety found in the great summer training school of Moody at Northfield. Price 60 cents. Address E. B. Treat & Company, New York, N. Y.

Few of the magazines for February present a more notable list of writers, or more timely subjects, than Self Culture. Chronologically, February is a red letter month in the history of the United States, as in that month the two Presidents whom the people most venerate and love to honor were born. Recognizing this fact, the first places in the contents of this number are given to an interesting study of the characteristics of Washington as a statesman and as a man of strong individuality in all the walks of life, by Henry Wade Rogers, President of Northwestern university; and to a similar resume of those sterling, honest, and manly traits that gave Lincoln the place he holds in the hearts of all true Americans. The honesty of purpose, and devotion to principle and to the interests of the people of the whole country, which the sketches of these two lives exhibit, afford useful reading, and should be food for serious thought for those men in public life who are placing present honors and party gains before the general good. Public opinion seems to be a fickle dame; but the record of these two lives proves that she chooses her heroes, with unerring judgment, from the ranks of those who follow the path of duty without wavering, and to whom personal honor and integrity and a clear conscience are worth more than present honors or selfish gains. Not less timely, nor less suggestive, is the paper by Professor Laughlin, of the University of Chicago, on "Commissions on the Tariff and Money" which contains a masterly summary of the conditions which have created the "Boss" in politics, and made possible, we had almost said natural, the corruption which is too prevalent in both the great political parties. These papers, with ten others hardly less interesting and valuable, and with the informing matter of the eight departments, make up a number that should challenge the attention of every lover of good reading, and easily place self culture on a plane of successful competition with the best of the older and more pretentious magazines. For sale by all news dealers, or subscriptions ($1.00 a year) may be sent directly to Self Culture Magazine, Akron, Ohio.

We want to see more interest manifested in our Calendar and Year Book this year. The sale was very small last year and the sales of the book did not remunerate the house for the publication of it. We have made an effort this year to put out a book that will be worth many times the cost of it to every purchaser, and we would like to see you all interested enough in it to send in your order for one or more copies. Single copy 15 cents, 5 copies 50 cents, 12 copies $1, 25 copies $1.50.
