Stand Up to be Counted

The above is a cut of our college. This Institution stands for the ideals, doctrines, and principles of our church. Viewed from every angle, our school is now in the best condition in its history. We are better equipped for our work. We have better financial support. We have regular accreditation with the state for four years work. We are recognized by the leading universities of the Middle West. These victories have all come to us in the past two years.

One more victory remains to be won, and then if our present income is maintained, the college will be riding upon a fairly even keel. We must pay off its present indebtedness. Brother, Sister, are you watching the links in that chain? Are those links being split as rapidly as they should be if this money is to be raised by the fifteenth of May? Without doubt hundreds of United Brethren are expecting to split at least one link before the campaign is over. Please do it now. Send us either your check or your pledge so you can be counted. This is important, because it will require the entire time between the fifteenth of May, and the seventh of June, to collect our pledges and call in all notes and bonds so we may close the campaign at the time appointed.

This is the critical time, when every UNITED BRETHREN, who believes in Christian education, in the stability of our institutions, and in paying our honest debts, should stand up to be counted. ARE YOU ONE?

An Earnest Letter

Bro. Editor: The Conservator arrived in this far-away land last night, all filled with exhortations to pay Huntington College out of debt. With this proposition I am heartily in accord. The only way I ever knew to kill a debt was just to pay it.

But I cannot pay fifty thousand dollars. Were I to sell all I have, borrow all I could, and take in washing, I should still come far short of paying fifty thousand dollars. But I can contribute my mite and if a thousand more will do the same, that debt will look like thirty cents.

Let it be done! A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether.

F. L. Hoskins.
