

Harriet Whonsetler Heard In Concert

Featured in the first artists concert and fourth event in this season's Fine Arts Series was Miss Harriet Whonsetler, soprano, who appeared in the college auditorium Tuesday evening, January 6. Her program included "If You Have Forgotten" (Warren), "Music I Heard With You" (Hageman), "Beautiful Art Thou, My Love" (Hyde), a song cycle from "The Mountain Maid" (Grieg), Madalena's Narrative from "Andrea Chenier" (Giordano), "Adieux de l'Hotesse Arabe" (Bizet), "Je Te Veux" (Satie), "Carnival" (Fourdrain), "He Is Kind, He Is Good" from "Herodiade" (Massenet), "Slave Market" (Sandoval), "Without Your Love" (Sandoval), Serena's Song from "Porgy and Bess" (Gershwin), and the familiar "Villa" from "The Merry Widow" (Lehar). Her accompanist was Mrs. Brown Cooper.

Immediately following the concert was a reception in the college dining hall.

F. T. A. News

F. T. A. members: Have you been doing your best for F. T. A.? The program committee has done a fine job in lining up the programs for this coming semester. The constitution committee also has been hard at work. Let's see you at our next meeting, Tuesday, Jan. 27 at 7:00 to learn some important and practical lessons about "Visual Aids in Teaching." Mr. C. L. Day, visual education director at Huntington High School, will be our guest speaker.

Poling Elected Queen

The weather was cold, but the reception, as usual, was warm, as Huntington College rolled out the welcome mat on Saturday, January 10, to greet alumni returning to pay homage to their Alma Mater on the occasion of her annual family reunion, Homecoming Day. And as for the feature without which no Homecoming celebration would be complete, the Queen, half-time ceremonies at Saturday evening's basketball contest with Oakland City proved that one of the most exhaustive campaigns this campus has ever seen had culminated in the selection by student vote of Miss Eileen Poling, an H. C. freshman from Junction City, Ohio, for the honor. In the Queen's court were the other three aspirants for the title, Barbara Henry, Dorothy Campbell, and Juanita Burkholder.

Friends visiting the college were not without activities to occupy their time during the earlier portions of the day. Following a 2:00 "Get Acquainted" Hour in the nearly completed first floor of the Loew-Alumni Library, the alums, slightly smaller in number than on previous Homecoming days due to inclement road conditions, moved to the college auditorium for a two-section program, "Huntington—Today and Yesterday". The first section took the form of a forum discussion of the subject, "Is the Huntington College Perspective Broad Enough To Meet The Needs Of Its Students?" by Tony Sahar, Ruth Hortsman, June Litwiller, and Prof. Guha, with Prof. Zurcher as moderator. The second, or musical, portion of the program, with Kate Densmore as Mistress of Ceremonies, opened with vocal selections by Ruth Becker, class of '52, and Esther Bean, followed by a piano number by Burt Lange. Closing the session was a musical sketch featuring Mr. Clarence Young, an alumni of both the student body and faculty, who, garbed in a World War I uniform, pantomimed his impression of the familiar tune of that era, "K-K-K-Katy", assisted by Dottie Campbell in the title role, and Esther Bean supplying the vocal refrain.

By this time, the usual happiness of renewing old acquaintances, augmented by the regular planned festivities of the day, was too great to be dimmed even by a heartbreaking three-point loss at the hands of Oakland City in the celebration's climax, the traditional Homecoming game.

Henry Engaged

Christmas vacation brought many pleasant memories, and to Barbara Henry it brought a beautiful engagement ring. Yes, that's true. Miss Barb Henry became engaged to Mr. Ross Hoover. The bride-elect is very active in co-curricular activities. As a freshman, she takes interest in her class, cheerleading, clubs, and just recently she was in the queen's court for Homecoming.

The Footpath

If you will stand on the front steps of College Hall and look out across the campus toward the Men's Dormitory, you will see a footpath which runs past the big Norway maple, curves around the fountain which was a gift from the Class of '16, passes the old Hartsville College Bell, crosses north of the flag pole, and intersects College Avenue just north of the entrance to Wright Memorial Hall, in my mind, this is more than an ugly scar upon the face of the campus. Like so many other projects on the front campus, it is an emblem—an emblem of certain traits that are marring the personalities of the young people who have made the path.

First, it is an emblem of laziness. By actual count, if you can go from Wright Hall to College Hall via the sidewalk in 160 steps, you will save approximately 25 steps (1/8 of the distance) by taking the footpath. Yet some people are willing to sacrifice the beauty of the campus for that.

Second, it is an emblem of disorganization. The path is no doubt frequented by the student who failed to organize his time sufficiently so that he could be on time for his class and still take the "long" way to College Hall via the sidewalk.

Finally, it is an emblem of thoughtlessness. All summer, the College pays good, hard-earned money to workmen who mow and trim the lawn so that it will be attractive and beautiful. Then in the fall, a mob of thoughtless youngsters mess it up for the whole winter.

By now, of course, the practical-minded youth is scoffing at the sentimentalist who would make such a fuss about a few blades of grass on the front campus. But let me remind you that every day we are developing patterns of behavior. And it is not difficult to find around us, hearts that are broken and lives that are ruined because of such little things as laziness, disorganized living, and thoughtlessness.

Student, the next time you take the footpath to College Hall, look around at the scenery and think. As you pass the Stars and Stripes, think of our pioneer fathers who walked half-way across the continent to clear the land so that we could build sidewalks and a few other things. And as you pass the Hartsville College Bell, think of all the people whom you will never know who sacrificed in order that we might have Huntington College. And as you pass the fountain, think of the hundreds who studied here before you ever heard of H. C., have sacrificed to maintain it, and now count on you to "handle with care" the College they love. And as you pass the Norway maple, think of Dr. Loew who loved the ground you are walking on and who would rather that you trampled across his grave than marred the campus beauty of the College to which his life was dedicated.

And then on the way back to the dorm, take the sidewalk!

Vacation Highlights

What did you do during vacation?

Jean Saufley—I went to a hockey game and also started going steady.

Howard Smith—I went on an excursion to Bluffton and to a New Year's tourney.

Kathryn Densmore—I divided my time between Hillsdale and Blissfield, seeing old friends.

Mildred Birdsall—Had a pleasant time with Marvin and my parents the first week, and studied hard the second week.

George Humbarger—I enjoyed myself at Keywest with other college students.

Ruthie Hortsman — I got lost in York, Pa., and rode around in a cab, and rang doorbells from 3:00 A. M. until 6:00 A. M. More fun!

Prof. Paine—I made out semester exams.

Y. W. C. A. Meets

For the January meeting, the Y. W. C. A. had as its guests, members of the Altrusa Club, an International Club of Professional Women.

In the devotional period, Ardyce Hoffer read Psalm 9. The group sang "Take My Life and Let It Be", and Kathryn Densmore led the group in prayer.

Suzanne Shilling, a high school student, told a story "Color Blindness" and closed with the Lord's Prayer.

A Home Demonstration Agent, Manager of a Dress Shop, Dean of Women at the high school, chiropractor, Registrar, Librarian and Public School Nurse, all members of the Altrusa Club gave short talks.

The next meeting will be a joint meeting with the Y. M. C. A.

Barb Mull—I was so busy doing all sorts of things, that it seemed good to spend a quiet day at H. C.

Gene Buzzard—I went to Chicago for entertainment.

Tom Glenn—I enjoyed the Sunny South and visited the fair isle of Cuba.

Mary Lou Funk—I read Moby Dick and played checkers with my brother.

Ross is attending Indiana University Extension School. No definite date has yet been set for the wedding. We extend our heartiest wishes and congratulations to our newest engaged student.

Living by the Spirit

The opening days of a new year frequently find individuals reexamining their personal life for purposes of making resolutions, adopting new habit patterns, etc. Paul's exhortation, in Galatians 5:16, is a worthy one for consideration at such a time. Williams translates the statement "Practice living by the Spirit".

This statement is for Christians only. At the same time it is an imperative for all Christians. It applies to instructors and students, to leaders and followers. It is not confined to any particular age-group or generation.

This imperative implies dependence upon the Spirit. As the individual must receive his new life from the Spirit so must he maintain that dependence throughout all his experiences. No one can live the Christian life independent of the Spirit of God. "If we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us also walk." (A. S. V.)

Consistency of life seems to be another implication of this important truth. The Spirit and the "flesh" represent not only opposites but opponents. They oppose each other and cannot be reconciled. For the individual it is one or the other. To "walk by the Spirit" means that the individual has allowed the Spirit to have the mastery of his life. To walk with Him means to walk in harmony with Him. "Walk in the Spirit and ye shall not fulfill the lusts of the flesh."

The Spirit offers constant and continuous guidance for the Christian who will seek such. Weymouth brings out this aspect when he translates the statement: "Let your lives be guided by the Spirit". The Spirit leads through the Word of God and by direct act and it is a consequential act to either "resist" or "grieve" the Spirit of God.

Living by the Spirit also implies progress. Walking suggests movement. Walking with God suggests forward movement or progress. As the new year unfolds it ought to witness progress in the life of every sincere Christian. It will if we "Practice living by the Spirit".
