Professor Attends Conference

Webster C. Muck, Jr., director of student personnel of the college, was at Goddard college in Plainfield, Vermont, February 11-15, attending the winter conference of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges.

Huntington college is one of the 65 colleges which are members of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges. These colleges are all small ones which have not yet been regionally recognized.

The basic element of study during three days of the conference was a review of the testing program which has been carried on by these colleges during the year and of further advancement in Quality Education.

One day of the meeting was devoted to a coaching conference on fund raising. This Council has already launched upon a three million dollar fund raising campaign which will continue over a three-year period. The goal is to raise $5,000 by each of the member colleges, $5,000 from each of 65 corporations, and $5,000 annually from each of 65 foundations. The purpose of the fund drive is to increase teacher salaries and to promote the general improvement of instruction.

Library Open Saturdays

The Loew-Alumni library has tentatively added three hours to the number open each week. At the request of the Student Council the Faculty Library committee decided upon a trial period for Saturday afternoons. The librarian, Miss E. Faye Connor, announced that this trial period will be from 1 to 4 p.m. during February and March.

Saturday, February 15, was the first time open and the library was well attended, said Miss Connor, with 30 students studying or getting or returning books.

REV. H. W. TURPIN WILL SPEAK AT WASHINGTON BANQUET

The Egyptian room of the Hotel LaFontaine will be the scene of the Huntington college Washington Banquet, which will take place this evening at 6:30 p.m. This event is the annual highlight of the college social calendar.

The speaker for the occasion will be the Rev. Harold W. Turpin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Hammond. This is one of the largest Presbyterian churches in Indiana.

Students Hear Beamer

Fifth District Congressman John V. Beamer spoke at the Huntington college assembly Friday morning, giving a Lincoln speech with what he termed modern application.

Dealing mainly with today's economic problems, Congressman Beamer sketched the "push button" philosophy of E. Maynard Keynes which has dominated our economy for nearly 30 years. Lincoln's philosophy, stated Mr. Beamer, was that government should be for the people only what they cannot do for themselves.

Our national debt is now larger than the combined debts of the world's sixty greatest nations, said Mr. Beamer. In a "push button" economy there is always the danger that someone may push the wrong button.

Congressman Beamer, who was in the district for Lincoln Day celebrations, was introduced by Mrs. Thomas M. Watts.

In addition to the address by Mr. Turpin, three musical groups from the college will perform. A girls trio, made up of Janet Kinzer, Marilyn Smith, and Virginia Murray will sing.

Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Weekley will present a piano duet. Danny Wolfe, Nola Amsler, and Lois Batdorf will compose a trumpet trio.

Toastmaster for the dinner will be William Couch.

Banquet officials, judging from past years, are expecting approximately 150 to attend. Invitations have been mailed to several persons in the city, however, the entire community is welcome at this event.

The dinner is not strictly formal. Either formal or informal attire will be appropriate.

The planning of the banquet has been in the hands of combined student and faculty committees. They are as follows:

Professor Robert Paine is chairman of the program committee. Serving with him on this committee are: Dr. Elmer Becker, president of the college, William Landrigan, Carlson Becker, Robert Myers, and Frank Winterhalter.

The invitation and publicity committee is composed of: Danny Wolfe, chairman; Wayne Smith, Galen Colclessler, Phyllis Cherry, Sally Kirschner, Richard Burgess, and Glenn McComber.

Heading the decorations committee is Mrs. Thomas Watts. Other committee members include Marilyn Kurtz, Norman McFadden, Joyce Buzzard, Jean Carroll, Paul Chambers, and Marietta Hough.

The two-men places and menus committee is composed of Willis Lechleider and James Kline.

Miss Irene Bergdall is chairman of the tickets committee. Serving with her on this committee are Marietta Crowe, Colleen Keller, Carol Cross, and Jon Rupright.

Unofficial general chairman for the dinner is Professor Webster Muck, chairman of the school's student affairs committee. The committee annually serves as the sponsoring body for the banquet.

SPIRITUAL HIDEAWAY

A most amazing thing occurred in Jerusalem shortly after the ascension of Jesus. And to the many strangers who were in the city at that time, it appeared to be an unbelievable phenomenon. Certain Galilean men were walking around speaking in such a language that even foreigners could understand. And then something more overwhelming happened. A rough, rugged-looking fisherman stood up in the midst of the excitement and began to talk and speak with such power and authority that he immediately commanded the attention of the multitude. Peter was the one who spoke that day, and after it was over, hundreds and even thousands of people were born into the Kingdom of God.

Now why did those things occur? What made these men act as they did? How could an ignorant fisherman make such a powerful appeal and move an entire city? I think that perhaps it is not so amazing if we go back a little and realize just what took place immediately preceding this upheaval in Jerusalem.

The first chapter of Acts states that the disciples returned to Jerusalem and with some women and brethren retreated to an upper room. And then comes this significant phrase, one which I believe holds the key to our understanding of those things which happened. "These all with one accord continued steadfastly in prayer," Acts 1:12 ASV. These people wanted the spirit of God so badly that they immediately gathered and "with one accord" continued in prayer until that power became theirs.

This then, was their preparation, and what was theirs should also be ours today. If we desire an outpouring of God's Spirit on our campus we must also be of one accord and wait before the Lord until we have a real victory. If we give half to God, He will give half back to us, but if we have a tremendous desire for the best that God can give, we must give the best we have. We must sacrifice until the truth becomes so powerful that it will completely sever the bonds of resistance. This is the kind of preparation we need for C.L.E.W. Are you willing to pay such a price?

NOTES AND QUOTES

They're coming through the windows and pouring out the doors, we have another "Bulldog" in our midst — Dick Robb.

It appears that the tables in the dining hall serve more than one purpose for some people. They seem to make a good hiding place for Lowell Stouder and Bill Lightner.

Dick Scovile's philosophy is "Don't cry over spilled milk." He had a chance to practice it when Virginia Murray poured a whole pitcher of it over him in the dining hall. The funny thing is she claims it was an accident.

Because of Twirp Week the bell was constantly ringing in the boy's dorm. One belle who really went for the idea was Nedra Maruska. After escorting about every available male on the campus to various activities, she is now a broke but very happy girl.

Also because of this famous week, Azars' in Fort Wayne was invaded by a number of our students. At one time the total count reached eighteen.

Just how many does it take to find a shuffle board disk? We hear Mary Lou Snyder and Samuel Bowman had quite a time of it the other night when one of their went astray under the bleachers.

The two newest sweethearts of the campus are "Mom" Lightner and Coach Klopfenstein. If you don't believe it come out to Rollerland some morning and watch them skate together. She outshone all the girls in her bright green shoe skates.

Don't you know it doesn't pay to study accounting until three o'clock in the morning, Mark. Jon Rupright tells us that when the alarm rang you could be heard reciting your debits and credits while still asleep. With a brain like that you should go far.

Congratulations to Phil Fiedler and Carole Taylor on their recent engagement.

Public Affairs Series . . .

Recently a delegation from Huntington college attended the Washington Seminar on Federal Service. The Seminar was held in Washington, D. C., on February 12 through February 14. The Huntington college delegation was composed of Professor Robert Paine, Dick Fredrick, Jim Hoffman and Jim Kline. Approximately one hundred students and professors attend the Seminar, representing sixteen Christian colleges and Bible schools in the United States.

The Seminar was sponsored by the National Association of Evangelicals. The NAE is a voluntary association of evangelical churches, denominations, colleges, Bible schools, seminaries, evangelistic organizations and individuals. The purpose of the Seminar was to explain the functions of government and to show the need for Christian young people in government work today.

I will briefly review a few of the outstanding parts of the conference. Dr. Fredrick Fox, Special Assistant in the White House, explained the functions of the Presidency. The duties and responsibilities of the presidential office have expanded tremendously since the beginning of our government under our Constitution. Even on his vacations the President never escapes the requirements of his duties. These duties may be divided into six phases. The president is (1) Chief Executive in charge of administering two million federal employees. He is (2) number one leader in his political party, and as such must (3) negotiate Administration policies through Congress. Three million people are controlled by the President as (4) Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces, while the (5) diplomatic office requires that the President meet about 2,500 people a year as head of state. Finally, the President acts as (6) minister to the people of his national community who expect him to take direct interest in solving their myriad of personal problems. However, the people who expect the President to take direct interest in solving their problems are addressing an office rather than a man. Dr. Fox pointed out that the man is actually the "heart and soul" of an organism which bears the stamp of his personality — the office of the Presidency.

Dr. Mansel Keene, Chief, Standards Division, Civil Service Commission, delivered a speech on Civil Service. The U. S. Civil Service presents a challenge to young people because of the opportunities which it provides for continuous constructive public service. Dr. Keene indicated that Civil Service is dependent upon the quality of the men and women who make up the department.

The group also heard a speech by Senator Frank Carlson of Kansas. Senator Carlson stressed the need for Christian leaders and diplomats in the world today. He emphasized that one could be a Christian and participate in politics.

A panel discussion was presented by five Civil Service employees. They pointed out the need for government workers with Christian principles and ethical standards, particularly in fields concerning national security.

Two outstanding speeches were presented at the NAE fellowship dinner by Dr. George Ford, Executive Director of NAE, and Dr. Clyde W. Taylor, Secretary of Public Affairs, NAE. Dr. Ford said that, God has a plan for our individual lives. The important thing is to be in the center of God's will. We should pray for consecrated young people to be called into service for the government. Dr. Ford feels that we live in the gravest hour our nation has ever known. He said "that integrity reflects in our outward lives the change Christ has made within. Unless we can depend upon the Church to build integrity into American life, we have no hope."

Dr. Taylor began his speech by quoting Proverbs 14:34: "Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people." Dr. Taylor declared that there is no such thing as mass righteousness, only individual righteousness. Each individual citizen helps to determine the character and integrity of a nation. It is up to each one of us.

Dr. Taylor expressed concern about the type of people applying for jobs in government service today. It is found that an increasing number of college graduates applying for government jobs have no absolutes in their ethical standards. Their ethics are relevant, depending upon the circumstances. They feel that patriotism is outmoded. Many favor the increasing trend towards a socialistic state. Dr. Taylor stressed the need for young people with ethical standards to enter government service. He felt that we can best find these young people in Christian colleges.

The YWCA is planning its monthly meeting for Monday evening, February 24, in the C. E. Carlson home, according to Janice Blauser, YW president.

The film, "In His Name," was shown by the Clericus organization at their meeting February 8. Plans were made for a noonday luncheon Thursday, February 27. They plan to have a second luncheon before the end of the semester, according to Wilber Sites, president of the organization.

Clericus members plan to have an active part in providing for Christian Life Emphasis week visitors, Sites said.

Foresters Receive Complementing Letter

About two weeks ago Dr. Corinth Lange, dean of the college, received a letter from Mrs. Laura Hatten, a waitress in Jackson, Ohio. The occasion for the letter? Mrs. Hatten had been so pleased with the conduct of the H. C. Woodsmen, who ate at the restaurant in which she works, that she wanted to express her appreciation.

Here are some excerpts from her letter. "I want to compliment you and your associates of the college on the fine young men you are turning out. I have been with this establishment for 16 years and we haven't in all that time met and served such a nice bunch of boys . . . it was a real pleasure to serve them."

The Foresters had stopped in Jackson, Ohio, on their way to Rio Grande for a basketball game.

Second Semester Enrollment Drops

The enrollment figures for the second semester are as follows:

Freshmen.....	84
Sophomores.....	67
Juniors.....	46
Seniors.....	38
Bachelor of Divinity.....	13
Post Graduate.....	6
Unclassified.....	19
Special.....	1

The total enrollment is 274, 10 less than first semester.

Twenty-eight new students have already enrolled for the fall semester of the 1958-59 college year.

Woodsmen Drop Olivet Snaps Thriller To Three Game Streak Cedarville

Huntington staged a last half up rising, after dropping behind 45 to 34 at the half, but were unable to overcome a hot shooting Cedarville quintet. The Woodsmen lost the game after pulling within three points in the final minute of the game. The final score was 95 to 90.

Tom Rethlake had but ten points at the half, then came off the bench to pour 29 through the nets in the second half, but was unable to keep the Foresters from suffering their 13th defeat. Tom had his best night of the year with 39 points.

Bob Fulton followed Rethlake with 18 points coming from nine field goals. One of Fulton's field goals came on a hard high feed to Rethlake, which proved to be too high for Tom, but just right for two points.

The Woodsmen out scored the Cedarville five from the floor by a 70 to 62 margin, but Cedarville hit a brilliant .892 from the free throw stripe, which proved to be the difference in the game.

The next home game will be this Saturday night against Rio Grande

Foresters Roll Over Tri-State

Huntington college Foresters, avenging an earlier defeat, coasted to an 83 to 71 victory over Tri-State for their eighth victory of the season a week ago Tuesday evening on the Foresters' floor.

Tom Rethlake led the Woodchoppers with his second consecutive 24 point performance. Lowell Stouder chipped in with 18 counters and Bob Fulton scored 11 points to aid the cause.

Tri-State featured a strong rebounding team, but poor shooting more than nullified their advantage in height. Tri-State took 115 shots to the Foresters 88 but Huntington hit for a much higher percentage. The Foresters also out-shot the visitors at the free throw line.

After a fairly close opening first quarter Huntington jumped into a nine point lead at 34 to 25 and maintained a 4 to 13 point lead throughout.

The Engineers pulled to 57-53 early in the 4th quarter but Huntington responded with six straight points and safely coasted to a 12-point victory.

Olivet college of Olivet, Michigan stalled out the last five minutes to snap the Foresters' three game winning streak on the ninth of this month.

The Woodsmen who had journeyed north into Michigan for the first time this year with hopes of stretching their winning streak to 'our games, were unable to stop Olivet in the final half.

The first twenty minutes proved to be a real battle with the lead changing hands quite often. The Foresters showed moments of real earn work, but for the most part appeared quite sluggish. At the half the Woodsmen were on top 33 to 32 and opened the second half with a quick two points. At this point Olivet hit three quick baskets to take over the lead, which they never gave up.

Olivet bottled up every one but Rethlake who hit for 24 points. Stouder had nine and Handwork was next with seven.

In the final five minutes Olivet went into a stall and even with some deliberate fouling to gain possession of the ball, the Foresters were unable to overtake them. The final core was 66 to 59 and the Woodsmen absorbed their 12th loss.

Due to Tom Rethlake's thirty-nine point performance at Cedarville, he not only took over as Indiana's leading collegiate scorer, but is now ranked 7th in the nation.

Along with Tom, Lowell Stouder had been ranked in the top ten of the state scorers for most of the season. Even though our win and loss column isn't the best we still have some bright spots to look back at for years to come. We of the staff want to congratulate both of these players for their fine records thus far this year.
