

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

It is recorded of Louis Napoleon that having announced to the emperor of Russia that he was seated on the throne of France, and having received from Czar Nicholas a reply addressed not to "Mon frere," as is usual between crowned heads but "Mon ami," Napoleon the Third, remarked: "This is most flattering. We choose our friends; we cannot choose our relations."

IRRITATION OF THE THROAT AND HOARSENESS are immediately relieved by "Brown's Bronchial Trochee." Have them always ready.

Novelty in advertising is the thing now. The latest and one of the most humorous schemes has been amusing the patrons of theatres for three or four nights, says a city contemporary, and has succeeded in escaping the notice of managers. A bald-headed man is the instrument. On his shining pate is painted in indigo blue the name of a patent medicine. He sits in the front row, and conducts himself with propriety, while people behind him are convulsed with laughter, each observer supposing that here is a practical joke some one has played on an unsuspecting friend.—Scientific American.

Strong People. Occasionally the world is startled by the advent of some man or woman who seems possessed of an almost supernatural physical strength. While such cases can but be classified within the lines of natural phenomena, there are, on the other hand, thousands of men and women whose strength is far below the average as a result of disease or an impoverished condition of the vital fluid—the blood.

Mr. Martin Hanna, of Del Norte, Colorado, in writing of the wonderful effects of Dr. PETER'S BLOOD VITALIZER and the cure which it effected in the case of his wife, says that "she now seems strong enough to do the work of two persons." He says: "It is now over two years since we first received a box of Dr. PETER'S BLOOD VITALIZER. Previous to that time my wife had been consulting physicians without receiving any particular benefit. She suffered from severe stomach ailment, as well as indigestion, so that she could hardly partake of the daintiest kind of food. As a result, she became very much emaciated and weak, and was absolutely unable to attend to her lightest household duties. At the same time she had a severe pain across the small of her back, so that it was thought, at times, that her kidneys were affected. After she had commenced the use of the second bottle she began to improve. She used, altogether, six large bottles, and has, since that time, felt like a new being. She can eat with a relish any kind of food, looks well, and is so strong that I believe she can do the work of two persons. All of our neighbors who saw my wife when she was sick, and who have seen her now, declare that medicine accomplished wonders, and my wife and I know that it is a fact."

Dr. PETER'S BLOOD VITALIZER, by its peculiar composition, not only eradicates all impurities from the vital fluid, but it creates new, rich, red blood, which strengthens the entire system. It is not a patent medicine and is not to be had of druggists, but of local agents, or the proprietor direct. Address Dr. Peter Fahrney, 112-114 S. Hoyne Ave., Chicago, Ill.

COMMON SENSE

Superior to all others, as in this the current is compelled to pass through the diseased organs of the body, invigorating the nerves; thereby increasing and equalizing the circulation of blood throughout all parts of the system.
